THE BROOKLYN BRIDGE

The Common Council of the city of Brooklyn have voted to take $3,000,000 of the company's stock for the purpose of building a bridge between the cities of New York and Brooklyn. On Tuesday last the Common Council of the city of New York adopted the ordinance authorizing a subscription of $1,500,000 for the same purpose. These amounts, respectively subscribed by the two cities, inure the success of the project. The cost of the entire structure, including everything, is estimated at $5,000,000. The citizens of New York and Brooklyn, and those who are interested particularly in the enhancement of property, will, without doubt, subscribe the amount necessary to complete the work. The population of Brooklyn has doubled within the last ten years, and has done so for thirty years past. Should the present ratio of growth keep on, its population in another ten years will equal that of New York city at the present time.

The suspending towers on which the bridge mainly rests, will be of stone. That on the Brooklyn side will be built in the river, near the shore, at the north end of the depot of the Fulton Ferry. The New York tower will be erected at the end of Pier No. 29, filling most of the space between Roosevelt street Ferry and Pier No. 28. The cables which pass over the towers, and upon which the bridge hangs, are "anchored" at two structures of solid masonry, between the starting-point of the bridge on each side and the towers. The anchor walls in New York are on the north side of Dover street, between Cherry and Water streets. The roadway of the bridge starts at the foot of Sands street, Brooklyn, runs for a little way parallel to the easiely side of Fulton street, taking off half the block there fronting on Sands and Fulton, down to the head of Main street, where it turns to the left and starts on an air-line toward the new Court House in New York city. The total length between the termini at Sands street, Brooklyn, and Chatham street, New York, is 3,962 feet.

The New York approach is 1,441 feet in length, on an ascending grade of 3 44-100 feet to every 100 feet of distance until it reaches the tower. Between the towers the roadway would appear, at a casual glance, to be level; but it is 15 feet higher in the centre than at the towers. The deflection of the cables below the summits of the towers is, in summer, 130 feet. The elevation of the grade in the centre of the span, in summer, is 133 feet above high tide. The elevation of the floor at the New York terminus is 66 feet, at the Brooklyn terminus 65 feet.

The roadway of the bridge is 80 feet wide, has but one floor, and has two broadways for common travel, each on the outer edge of the bridge, and 15 feet wide, including the sides walk; between these are two passenger transits, each 13 feet wide, for cars propelled by an endless wire gauge and stationary engine; between these and in the centre of the bridge is one elevated promenade, 15 feet wide, for such foot passengers as do not take either of the side-walks in the two broadways before mentioned.

The days of ferry boats for carrying passengers between Brooklyn and New York are numbered. Let every one interested give a helping hand to the bridge, and a kick to the ferries.

Long Island and the Kew Jersey yards have shown a slight increase, but all the cargoes have been received and have been quickly disposed of, and unless the demand very sensibly subsides, it will require much heavier receipts to affect the prices. Theule, with the greater part of the pediments to navigation a fair supply may be anticipated from the previous week, when they were selling for $2.20 to $2.50 in.

In the brick trade there has been a decided advance. At the New York wholesale jobbing contest, all the brick would work down to a lower level as the year advances. The great bulk of the desirable cedar ranges no alteration has occurred, and previous quotations are still current. The receipts continue fair, and the stock in the hands of both importers and dealers is ample for all immediate wants. The great bulk of the desirable cedar hogs and small lots are still on the market. The price of small lots has been very little in the market. The price of small lots has been very little

I for the season, and, with no outlet for stock, the tightness of the market has made holders take the chance of losing money. Tightness has, therefore, prevailed, with the result that a scarcity of supplies has been noted throughout the country. There has been a considerable demand for Swedes, ordinary sizes; scroll $130 to $175 per ton; oval $140 to $200 per ton; hag stock, $1.25 to $1.50 per bbl. for inferior and common; $1.50 to $1.75 per bbl. for old; $1.00 to $1.25 per bbl. for new, and 20c to 25c per bbl. for old.

The trade doing is mostly of a domestic character, excepting to a limited extent in the English market. Glues are dull, but held at previous quotations. The market for all grades of wheels is dull, and 78,871 lbs. zinc.

The general range may still be subscribed, and the form of the money market holds makers a little anxious, we are in no position to force sales, which, if attempted under present circumstances, would only further the glut on the market.

We quote at about $495 per ton for No. 1; $475 per ton for No. 2; $450 per ton for No. 3; $425 per ton for No. 4; $400 per ton for No. 5; and $375 per ton for No. 6; oval and half-round $150 to $175 per bbl.; and red 2% to 3% inch $100 to $125 per bbl. Common slate iron continues to move very well throughout the market, and figures are very good prevailing demand, and lots from store are restricted entirely to retail parcels, scarcely making an impression on the stock, and dealers generally appear content with their present position, which is very quiet the sales for the week embracing only a few transactions. We quote $125 to $150 per ton for large orders, and 78,871 lbs. zinc.

There has been a decided advance, closing firm, with very little stock offered. Tin is not in sufficient supply to meet the demand, and 1,100 packages.

The market remains remarkably dull for all grades, and with continued firmness the stocks are gradually coming into line. There are no much figures with much difficulty, the market closing strong on a range for all grades, and all figures are getting on the part of holders. It is anticipated that the supply will remain low for a considerable time to come. We quote $100 to $120 per ton for new, merchantable and shipping order; 40c for New York, 40c for packing. Receipts for week 219 bbls.
